The History of Windows on the World

Windows on the World was an iconic restaurant located on the 106th and 107th floors of the North Tower of the original World Trade Center in New York City. It opened in 1976 and quickly became a symbol of fine dining and spectacular views, attracting locals and tourists alike. The restaurant was known not only for its breathtaking panoramic vistas of Manhattan but also for its exceptional culinary experiences. Over the years, Windows on the World established itself as a premier venue for both food and wine, hosting a sophisticated clientele and high-profile events.

Significance in New York's Culinary Scene

Windows on the World was more than just a restaurant; it was a landmark in New York's gastronomic landscape. Its reputation for excellence extended beyond cuisine to encompass an innovative wine program that set new standards for beverage service in the United States. The restaurant's wine cellar was one of the most extensive in the country, featuring rare and vintage bottles. This focus on wine education and quality service helped elevate the status of wine in American dining culture during the late 20th century.

Tragic End and Historical Impact

The restaurant was tragically destroyed during the September 11, 2001 attacks, marking a somber chapter in its history. Despite its physical absence, Windows on the World's legacy continues through the memories of its patrons and the professionals who contributed to its success. The spirit of innovation and excellence in wine education that defined Windows on the World remains influential in the hospitality industry.

Kevin Zraly's Role at Windows on the World

Kevin Zraly served as the wine director at Windows on the World for over two decades, during which he revolutionized wine education and service.
