Understanding the NMLS Exam Structure

The NMLS exam is designed to assess the knowledge and competency of mortgage loan originators, ensuring they understand the regulatory environment, ethical responsibilities, and practical aspects of loan origination. The exam consists of two main parts: the National Component and the State Component. While the National Component covers broad federal regulations and general mortgage knowledge, the State Component focuses on state-specific laws and licensing requirements. Understanding this structure helps candidates target their studies effectively.

National Component Overview

The National Component tests knowledge of federal mortgage-related laws, ethics, and general mortgage industry practices. Topics typically include the Truth in Lending Act (TILA), Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA), Equal Credit Opportunity Act (ECOA), and the SAFE Act. State Component Overview

The State Component varies depending on the candidate's state of residence or employment. It covers state-specific mortgage licensing laws, regulations, and unique compliance requirements.
