Step 1: Assemble the Tent Poles

2. Connect the Poles: Most poles are connected by elastic cords. Stretch them out and connect each pole segment until you have the full structure.

Step 2: Lay Out the Tent Fabric

1. Position the Tent Body: With the help of a friend, place the tent body on the ground in your chosen location. Make sure the door is facing the desired direction.
2. Identify Tent Corners: Locate the corner pockets on the tent body where the poles will be inserted.

Step 3: Insert the Poles

1. Insert the Poles into the Sleeves: Thread the assembled poles through the fabric sleeves on the tent. If your tent has clips instead, attach the poles to the clips along the tent structure.
2. Raise the Tent: Once the poles are in place, gently lift the tent's structure to an upright position.

Step 4: Secure the Tent

1. Stake Down the Tent: Use the ground stakes to secure the tent corners. Drive the stakes into the ground at a 45-degree angle for maximum stability.
2. Adjust for Tension: Make sure the tent fabric is taut. If it's too loose, adjust the stakes accordingly.

Step 5: Attach the Rainfly

1. Position the Rainfly: If your tent includes a rainfly, lay it over the tent body. Ensure that it aligns correctly with the tent's entrance.
2. Secure the Rainfly: Use the provided clips or straps to attach the rainfly to the tent. This will help prevent water from seeping in during rain.

Step 6: Set Up the Guy Lines

1. Locate the Guy Points: Identify the guy line attachment points on the tent.
2. Attach the Guy Lines: Connect the guy lines to these points, and stake them out to provide extra stability against the wind.
